

When you're running from the past, it always catches up with you. Adrian Gamble fled to Hartville, Colorado, to save his life and the lives of those he loved. All he wants now is to disappear in this little mining town and forget the day that made him a hunted man. But as the new owner of the town mine and general store, anonymity becomes all but impossible, particularly when his relationship with the pretty store manager raises town suspicions. Phoebe Williams is a gentle, young widow trying to move on. Despite her reservations about the store's mysterious new owner, Phoebe wonders if God has brought them together for some special purpose. Can they both put the past behind them in order to secure the future?
